KILLED BY BLOW OF FIST.

Two Young Men Fight Duel With Nature's Weapons.

New Orleans yesterday days: A fatal duel was fought last night in the shadows of the great oaks, in Audubon Park. The principals were two well-known young men. There were no seconds and no weapons trouble between them was of long standing, and they determined to fight it out alone with bare knuckles. As the result, Walter L. Selph, son of Col. Dudley Selph, a promment citizezn, lies dead in the home of relatives tonight, while Lawrence L. Balley, whose sister, Miss Corinne Balley, is one of the leading musicians in the south, is on the verge of insanity. He has been released from prison on bond.

A young woman, whose name is with-held, was the innocent cause of the trouble. Messrs. Selph and Balley met a short time ago, and the former accused Mr. Balley of having "shown the white feather" when asked to fight on a former occasion. Mr. Bailey denied the charge, and told Mr. Selph that if he said he had backed out of an encounter he "lied."

"I am in town and intend to stay a few days. In regard to our little affair, I will be able to settle with you Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock at Audubon Park. By agreement the young men walked to a lonely spot in the park, took off their coats and collars and went at each other. Neither possessed any science, and it was a give and take fight, both receiving numerous blows. Mr. Bailey finally struck Mr. Selph in the mouth. The blow knocked Mr. Selph's head back with a quick jerk, and he stag-gered and fell to the ground.

Regarding the reduced world's output, the Engineering and Mining Journal observes: "The unfavorable result was due to the small contribution made by the Transvaal mines, a few only of which were operated during the early months of the year.
